

The Work Number Employee Guide and FAQ

What is The Work Number Database?

The Work Number® from Equifax is a simpler and more discreet way to help get proof of your employment and income information to credentialed companies when needed. It's available 24/7 so that you can get the decisions you need when you need them.

Without The Work Number service, a lender, property manager or pre-employment screener could call your employer and ask to check on your employment or income. Also, many verifications happen after business hours or on weekends.

Who can ask for a verification?

Not just anyone can ask for your personal information. They have to be credentialed and have a permissible purpose to obtain the information. The Work Number service requires requestors to be credentialed verifiers, meaning they have to go through a credentialing process to prove they have a permissible purpose under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) in order to make a request and receive information.

In addition, you have to give permission for a verifier to get your income information from The Work Number database. This is called consumer consent, and it's usually part of an application you complete, for a job, for a lease, or for credit.

How do I know my information is correct?

The Work Number database is governed by the FCRA, which requires that employees be able to see who has requested their information and that you can check your data and dispute anything that may be wrong or inaccurate. You can access your Employment Data Report, a consumer report from The Work Number, by visiting <https://employees.theworknumber.com/employment-data-report> to learn more.

How do you help protect my data?

The Work Number service uses stringent security standards to help protect this data. These protocols include advanced data encryption, physical security controls in the data centers, and user identity verification through multiple steps (often referred to as multi-factor authentication). There are also controls required under the FCRA to help protect your privacy.

Who needs to verify your employment and/or income? Typically, among other things, verifications are needed whenever someone:

- applies for a loan or public aid
- leases an apartment
- applies for a job
- updates their immigration status
- applies for a new credit card

A Salary Key is a single-use, six-digit code that you can provide to a verifier as consent to access your income information. Just so you know, your consent is generally provided at point-of-application (for example, when you sign a loan application), and a Salary Key is not normally needed – actually less than 1% of the time in most cases. But if a verifier asks you to provide one, The Work Number website makes it easy to get one.

<https://employees.theworknumber.com> and login to learn more, the Employer Code is 33022

The new Salary Key can be printed or emailed with instructions for the verifier on how to use it through The Work Number.

Note – At any point, select the “Salary Key Activity” link to view the status (used, unused, expired) of keys created. Salary Keys expire after 90 days.
